ABOUT THE EXPEDITION

Spiti Valley is a high-altitude desert region located in Himachal Pradesh, India, nestled between Tibet and India. Known for its stark, stunning landscapes, ancient monasteries, and Tibetan Buddhist culture, it sits at an elevation of around 12,500 feet. The name "Spiti" means "The Middle Land," referring to its position between Tibet and India. Popular spots include Key Monastery, Chandratal Lake, and the villages of Kaza, Tabo, and Dhankar.
